

About the Authors

The authors all have degrees in education or special education and many years of experience in classrooms with students who have hearing impairments. This sequential, structural program for teaching written English communication was developed because of their concern for those students having language deficiency problems.

© copyrighted material by PRO-ED, Inc.

