Introduction

The PCI Reading Program is a scientifically research-based curriculum created specifically to teach students with intellectual disabilities, autism, and significant learning disabilities to read. Designed as a three-level system, the program helps nonreaders learn to read step by step, first through whole-word visual discrimination and then through basic decoding using onsets and rimes. As students progress through the three levels, they learn to read 405 words and become more independent in their ability to decode unknown words.

PRODUCT VISION

The authors envisioned a program that would help students with intellectual disabilities experience success from the very beginning. Research on existing whole-word visual discrimination programs showed that they were highly successful with students with intellectual disabilities because they offered concrete learning approaches coupled with the repetition and review necessary for retention (Browder and Xin, 1998). However, studies also showed that students were unable to decode unknown words or read materials outside the programs. The work of the National Reading Panel (Armbruster, et al, 2001) showed the importance of five core skills in reading success: phonemic awareness, phonics, vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension. Many of the visual discrimination programs provided strong vocabulary instruction with some practice in comprehension and fluency, but they did not include phonetic instruction.

In speaking to educators across the country, the authors heard how difficult it was to find age-appropriate beginning level reading programs for students in middle school and high school. In addition, they learned of the challenge of finding engaging books for older students at the lowest reading levels.

After reading the research and talking to educators, the authors set out to develop a multilevel program that would begin with whole-word visual discrimination instruction combined with mastery-based learning, and eventually introduce phonetic patterns to help students recognize and decode unfamiliar words. The following tenets comprise the core of the PCI Reading Program:

1. Guaranteed student success through controlled-vocabulary reading materials and frequent repetition and review
2. Engaging, age-appropriate student books and other reading materials
3. Continuous progress monitoring
4. Evidence-based teaching strategies
5. Using what is known to introduce the unknown

Introduction

GUARANTEED STUDENT SUCCESS

The PCI Reading Program incorporates errorless teaching strategies to ensure student success with each task. Students learn one word at a time with frequent but varied repetition and review to support short- and long-term retention. All reading materials are carefully controlled so that students never encounter a word they do not already know.

ENGAGING, AGE-APPROPRIATE BOOKS

Each of the three levels in the program includes student books with full-color illustrations or photographs. The books feature adolescent main characters and real-world scenarios so that students in middle school and high school can easily relate to the stories. Students read their first book after learning just five words. As students learn more words, books increase in page count and in the number of sentences on a page. By Level Three, students are reading both fiction and nonfiction, with up to five paragraphs on a page.

CONTINUOUS PROGRESS MONITORING

To monitor student retention of the words and reading skills, Posttests and Unit Tests are included at regular intervals. Daily progress can be tracked using the Program Progress Chart. If a student needs remediation, the core program components can be repeated and/or the teacher can use the supplemental materials included for reteaching.

EVIDENCE-BASED TEACHING STRATEGIES

All three levels of the PCI Reading Program incorporate the research-proven teaching strategies of visual discrimination, mastery-based learning, and positive reinforcement. For a more complete description of these strategies and evidence of their effectiveness, see the PCI Reading Program White Paper, available at www.proedinc.com.

USING THE KNOWN TO TEACH THE UNKNOWN

The phonics concepts in Level Three are introduced using exemplars from the 280 words students learned in Levels One and Two. Using known words to teach the words that are unknown gives students confidence to learn new phonetic concepts.

Program Overview

The PCI Reading Program builds student success one level at a time. Completion of the three levels will take a nonreader to approximately a 3.0–3.5 reading level.

The program is carefully constructed to build student success by incrementally increasing reading skill complexity. In Level One, students learn one word at a time, and after every five words, they read a book. In Level Two, they continue to learn one word at a time, but they read a book every ten words and begin to integrate phonetic concepts with the introduction of inflectional endings and compound words. In Level Three, students are taught to recognize onsets and rimes from the sight words learned in Levels One and Two and to apply those patterns to basic decoding. Rather than having a book for every specified number of words, a book is provided for each word family taught.

LEVEL THREE

Research Summary

The PCI Reading Program essentially combines two schools of thought on how to teach students to read. In Level One, students learn to read through a whole-word, visual discrimination approach using repetition and review. At the same time, through the Phonemic Awareness unit in the Building Reading Skills e-book, students practice distinguishing different sounds and acquiring the basic phonemic awareness skills that serve as a foundation for learning to read through phonics. Level Two continues to use the whole-word approach to teach 140 additional words, but it also integrates more phonics with inflectional endings. This allows Level Three to make the full transition into phonics instruction while building upon the letter-sound patterns already present in the words students know.

To develop the program's unique progression, the authors used an array of research on visual discrimination, brain-based learning, and mastery learning as well as research on analytic phonics, comprehension, and fluency. The result is a three-level program that builds on previously taught skills and establishes a concrete path to phonetic success by using the sight words students already know as exemplars for basic word decoding.

SCIENTIFICALLY RESEARCH-BASED

Since Level One premiered in 2007, PCI Education has been committed to researching its effectiveness. Through an independent research group, two large districts in Florida participated in a multi-year, randomized control trial of the program in grades 3–8. The specific question addressed in the study was whether students whose teachers use Level One of the PCI Reading Program achieve higher sight-word assessment scores in reading than students whose teachers do not use the program.

For this study, the research firm, Empirical Education, Inc., randomly divided 47 teachers into two groups: an experimental group of teachers who were trained and used Levels One and Two of the PCI Reading Program (PCI group) and a control group of teachers who continued with their existing programs. A randomized experiment eliminates the variety of biases that could otherwise compromise the validity of the research.

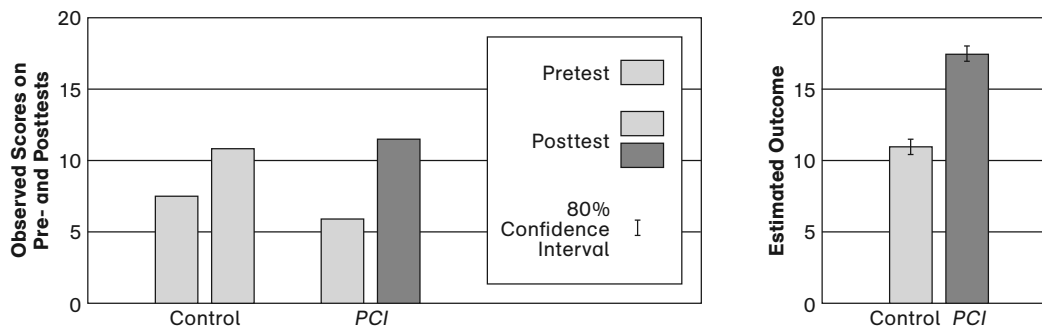

In November 2008, the final research report for the 2007–2008 study was released.* The experiment was able to detect a very large impact. After one year, students in the PCI program had substantial success in learning sight words when compared to students in the control group—equivalent to a 21 percentile point difference. Both unadjusted and adjusted analyses show high effect sizes (.55, .59) with small p values (Toby, et al, 2008).

Research Summary

For Sight Word Assessment: Unadjusted Pre- and Posttest Means for Control and PCI (Left); Adjusted Means for Control and PCI (Right)

In March 2010, the final research report for the 2008–2009 study was released.* The experiment was again able to detect a very large impact. After two years, students in the PCI program had increased success in learning sight words when compared to students in the control group—equivalent to a 31 percentile point difference. (Zacamy, et al, 2010).

On average, students in the PCI group received higher scores on the SW posttest than those in the control group.
(Effect size = 0.89 percentile points,  $p = .06$ )

Qualitative data obtained from surveys, observations, and informal interviews also showed very high levels of teacher satisfaction, as well as student engagement and enjoyment, with the PCI Reading Program.

Level Three Overview

A NEW FOCUS

Level Three moves students toward reading independence by teaching basic decoding using 23 onsets and 20 word families selected from words taught in Levels One and Two. Students learn the basics of word analysis, word building, and decoding. Built upon the successful controlled-vocabulary approach from Levels One and Two, students transition to learning onsets in the Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons and word families in the Core Instruction Guide. Level Three also expands students' reading selections, adding the genres of poetry and nonfiction.

Transition to a Phonics Focus

Level Three serves as the bridge between the whole-word visual discrimination approach in Levels One and Two and the decoding required of independent readers. To promote student success, instruction is carefully scaffolded to introduce students to the process of decoding by unveiling sounds that are embedded within the sight words they already know how to read.

A Wide Array of Manipulatives

The program comes with a magnet board and 363 magnets to make building words and sorting word families easy and fun. Five different types of magnets are included: onsets, rimes, words, inflectional endings, and word family labels. In addition, word strips and word windows similar to the ones in Level Two allow students to practice blending and decoding new words with automaticity. Like Levels One and Two, Level Three also includes Match on the Mat Text and Scene Cards for additional reading and comprehension practice.

More Reading Opportunities

One of the hallmarks of the PCI Reading Program is the inclusion of high-interest, controlled vocabulary books. In Level Three, this tradition continues by introducing a book with every word family unit.

Level Three Overview

New to Level Three are nonfiction books. The program's 20 books alternate between fiction and nonfiction, and each nonfiction book shares a theme or topic with the fiction book that follows it. Nonfiction books feature full-color photographs and offer a range of topics that include social studies and science themes. Many of the nonfiction books include features such as charts, diagrams, or timelines. Throughout each lesson, additional opportunities to read sentences and paragraphs are provided in the Read-Aloud Book, Activity Sheets e-book, and Write and Read Workbook.

Integrated Comprehension, Fluency, and Writing Instruction

In Level Three, students mature as both readers and writers, learning and applying comprehension skills and strategies as well as practicing fluency and writing. Comprehension skills, including setting, main idea, and cause and effect, were selected based on an analysis of the types of questions on alternative state assessments (see the chart on page 19). Unit Tests include both word decoding and comprehension questions, allowing teachers to monitor all aspects of reading progress. Students familiar with the Trace and Read Workbook from Levels One and Two will discover new writing opportunities and expanded practice in Level Three's Write and Read Workbook.

Key Differences in Level Three

- The focus of instruction shifts from whole-word visual discrimination to phonemic awareness and phonics.
- The program has two parts: one that focuses on onset instruction and one that focuses on word family instruction.
- The new lesson cycle more fully integrates phonics, comprehension, fluency, and writing.
- New genres in the form of nonfiction and poetry are introduced.
- The Trace and Read Workbook is replaced by the Write and Read Workbook.
- The Word Cards are replaced by the Magnet Board and Magnets.
- All instruction is integrated into scripted lesson plans in the Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons and the Core Instruction Guide. Other components serve as support to these two explicit instruction guides.
- An array of additional assessments for progress monitoring includes phonemic awareness and fluency assessments as well as Unit Tests.

Level Three Overview

A UNIQUE APPROACH TO PHONICS

Students for whom the PCI Reading Program was written may have struggled in the past with phonetic instruction. Some of them may have had a difficult time hearing sounds or grasping the abstract nature of phonemes and blending.

However, for students to be independent readers, they must be able to decode unfamiliar words. Level Three introduces students to this critical reading skill, but does so with a uniquely scaffolded approach that builds on the foundation of words students already know from Levels One and Two. It does this in two ways:

1. It emphasizes blending onsets and rimes, rather than discrete letter sounds.
2. The onsets and rimes taught are present in the 280 words students have already learned through visual discrimination.

Onsets and Rimes

Many traditional phonics approaches require students to “sound out” and blend each discrete letter in a word (e.g., /b/ /a/ /t/ = bat). To help students who find this approach too abstract or who struggle with letter sounds, Level Three approaches phonics by teaching word parts. Students learn the sounds of each consonant and consonant digraph represented by an onset, and blend that onset sound with a word family rime. Limiting the number of sounds that must be blended together to make a word minimizes the confusion that a variety of vowel sounds can introduce and makes blending more concrete than traditional approaches.

Building from the Known

To introduce onsets and rimes in Level Three, many of the sight words learned in Levels One and Two are used as exemplars. From the context of these known sight words, students learn to identify each onset and rime. The rimes with the most exemplars in the program are taught first so that students have a variety of examples to work from.

Level Three Overview

Four-Step Decoding

As students work through Level Three, they learn to read new decodable words step by step.

STEP 1
Examine known sight words to identify common onsets and rimes

STEP 2
Associate onsets and rimes with sounds

STEP 3
Match sounds to letters

b

at

b+at

bat

STEP 4
Blend sounds to decode unfamiliar words

Level Three Overview

23 Onsets

Level Three teaches 23 onsets, including all single consonants and three consonant digraphs. The consonant q is taught with the vowel u, since that is how students will always encounter it when it is used as an onset. These onsets are taught in the Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons. The order of the onsets is research-based, reflecting the frequency of occurrence in English and articulation distinctness. (Bear, et al, 1996).

20 Rimes

Twenty word families, or rimes, are taught in Level Three. The rime selection was based on research by Wylie and Durrell (1970), which identified the most common word families. Each word family is taught in a unit within the Core Instruction Guide. Facilitators should teach these units in order, as they build upon each other and integrate review. The word family order of presentation is based on the number of exemplars in the program. The word family -ay has seven exemplars (day, may, pay, play, say, stay, and way); therefore, it was chosen as the first unit.

Level Three Overview

STUDENT BOOKS

The 20 Level Three student books correspond to the word family units. Each book features all the words from a unit's word family, words from Levels One and Two, and words from previously taught word families. As a result, the books are still highly controlled but have increased in complexity from Level Two. Ten of the books are nonfiction and ten are fiction. With the introduction of nonfiction, students are exposed to a new genre and begin to learn strategies for comprehending nonfiction, such as scanning the subheadings before reading and interpreting graphic features such as diagrams and timelines.

Age-Appropriate

Many books that feature word families focus so much on the use of rhyming words that they may begin to sound like nursery rhymes or other materials aimed at young children. This is not true of the books in Level Three, because students are more likely to be middle school and high school age. The books integrate words from the same word family in as natural a way as possible, creating age-appropriate, respectful text, with storylines that focus on real-world themes and high-interest activities.

The photographs in the nonfiction books and the illustrations in the fiction books add a sophisticated, contemporary look and feature teenagers whenever possible.

Carefully Designed

Each of the books in the program represents a thoughtfully constructed use of the current word family words along with words from word families already taught. Each book includes one or more uses of each word in the current word family as well as at least two words from each of the previous six word families.

Like Levels One and Two, students should never encounter a word that they do not know or do not know how to decode. This tight control enables students to successfully use their new decoding skills and build reading confidence unit by unit and book by book.

Level Three Overview

Book Pairs

To further enhance comprehension, books are presented in alternating order: nonfiction, then fiction throughout the 20 units. The topic or theme of each nonfiction book is reflected in the fiction book that follows it. By pairing the books in this way, the nonfiction book provides some prior knowledge that students can use as they read the fiction book from the next unit. Book pair topics include:

Books 43 and 44: Theme Parks

Books 45 and 46: Having a Job

Books 47 and 48: Caves as Homes

Books 49 and 50: Pets

Books 51 and 52: Working with Horses

Books 53 and 54: Birds

Books 55 and 56: Protecting the Ocean

Books 57 and 58: Outdoor Activities

Books 59 and 60: Good Sportsmanship

Books 61 and 62: Healthy Eating

Books 45 and 46 discuss the topic of having a job.

Nonfiction Features

Nonfiction books include special text features such as timelines, maps, and charts that can aid comprehension. Lessons in the Core Instruction Guide include specific strategies for using these nonfiction features. A book feature or focus is listed on the back of each nonfiction book. These include:

Book 43 – Section Headings and Map

Book 45 – First Person Interviews

Book 47 – Compare and Contrast

Book 49 – Charts

Book 51 – Timeline

Book 53 – Diagram and Map

Book 55 – Diagram

Book 57 – Section Headings

Book 59 – Captions

Level Three Overview

COMPREHENSION SKILLS

State standards and alternative tests emphasize a variety of comprehension skills. As a result, Level Three provides a balance of phonics and comprehension instruction within the Core Instruction Guide lessons. Comprehension is infused throughout the activities, but it is explicitly addressed in Lessons 4 and 5 of each unit.

Based on State Standards

Each unit focuses on teaching a comprehension skill from the state standards. After extensive review of alternative standards for reading from states across the country, the most common comprehension skills were noted and incorporated into Level Three. These skills are taught in order from the most simple (setting, main character) to some of the more complex skills (fact and opinion, cause and effect). Each skill is taught explicitly in Lesson 4 of a unit and reviewed in Lesson 5 of that unit, as well as in future units where applicable. For a complete list of the skills and where they are addressed, see the chart on the facing page.

From Literal to Higher Order Comprehension

Comprehension activities enable the teacher to check for understanding and to help students make deeper connections within the text. For new readers, working with more concrete comprehension skills first helps cement understanding. In each unit in Level Three, initial comprehension questions for the book are more literal in nature with a focus on the basic question words (“who,” “what,” “where,” and “when”). Then, once the comprehension skill for the unit has been introduced and taught, higher-order comprehension questions related to that skill become the focus.

Level Three Overview

FLUENCY

Level Three provides explicit instruction and ongoing assessment in reading fluency. Fluency skills are integrated into the Core Instruction Guide lessons, and are taught and assessed using text from the student books. Fluency instructions are rooted in what the student is currently reading, making the learning meaningful. Fluency progress is measured four times throughout the program in Units 5, 10, 15, and 20.

Five Skills

Level Three instruction focuses on five different fluency skills, with one skill taught or reviewed in the Focus on Fluency section in Lesson 5 of each unit. Skills include:

- accuracy
- rate
- smoothness
- phrasing
- expression

Progress Monitoring

Directions for administering the fluency assessment and a Fluency Rubric have been included in the Assessments e-book to facilitate data collection by skill. Evaluators can use the Fluency Rubric to calculate a student's score and to interpret that score to determine future goals and objectives.

Supplemental Fluency Lessons

The Assessments e-book also includes supplemental Fluency Lessons for students who need additional instruction and practice. A chart is provided on page F 28 of the Assessments e-book so that teachers can track student progress on the supplemental fluency lessons.

FOCUS ON FLUENCY

Today you will practice reading with expression. Reading with expression means to use your voice to show the feeling that matches the words you are reading.

1. Open Book 47 to page 10. Read the first sentence aloud, modeling expression. Ask the student to echo your model. Stop the student, and remodel as many times as necessary until the student can read the entire sentence with expression. Repeat this modeling/echo process using the last sentence on page 10.
2. Point to the last two sentences on page 16. Give the student time to rehearse reading the two sentences with expression. Then ask the student to read the sentences aloud to you.
3. Ask the student to read page 10 aloud. Administer a fluency assessment using the rubric on page PM 16 of the Assessments binder. Record the results on the student's Core Instruction Program Progress Chart.

Level Three Overview

WRITING

Unlike Levels One and Two, Level Three integrates writing into each core instruction lesson. In the first two levels, students traced words they learned in the Trace and Read Workbook, and there was some room in the workbooks if instructors wanted the students to write the words. The writing provided a tactile activity to help students learn new words.

In Level Three, students write to communicate word comprehension and to respond to a book that has been read. The majority of these activities are found in the Write and Read Workbook. Level Three comes with five workbooks, and each student is intended to have one. Students make these workbooks their own as they write the new words, complete cloze activities, and fill out book reports.

In addition to the Write and Read Workbook, facilitators can encourage writing in Level Three with the Magnet Board that also serves as a dry-erase board. For ideas about how to use the Magnet Board in writing activities, see the Additional Teaching Suggestions on pages 75–77.

Level Three Overview

PROGRAM STRUCTURE

In order to learn the 125 new words introduced in Level Three, a student must be able to combine onsets and rimes (e.g., r + ake = rake). The components involving direct instruction of onsets and rimes are the Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons and the Core Instruction Guide. In both cases, the instruction is fully scripted and reinforced with activities.

Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons

This component contains direct instruction for 23 onsets, or initial consonants. Most of the onsets are represented by a single letter, except qu and three consonant digraphs (ch, sh, and th). The presentation order of the onsets is based on research on the frequency of occurrence in English and articulation distinctness. (Bear, et al, 1996).

Two other program components support onset instruction. The Activity Sheets e-book contains reproducible pages for practice at school or at home. The Assessments e-book contains a Letter/Sound Correspondence Test and a Phonemic Awareness Test, as well as ten supplemental Phonemic Awareness Lessons and tracking sheets.

Core Instruction Guide

The Core Instruction Guide provides direct instruction for 20 rimes (or word families). The guide is divided into 20 units, one unit per word family, through which the student learns to blend onsets and rimes to create new words. The order of rime presentation was determined by the number of exemplars for each word family in Levels One and Two.

Four other program components support the core instruction. Students practice reading the new words using the Read-Aloud Book and the student book for the unit. Writing practice is provided in the Write and Read Workbook, and the Activity Sheets e-book contains reproducible pages for practice at school or at home. In addition, the program provides several manipulatives, supplemental fluency lessons, assessments, and progress monitoring charts and checklists.

Program Setup

PROGRAM PREPARATION

The following materials should be prepared before beginning Level Three:

Book Display

Prepare a space for displaying the program's 20 student books. Consider creating two sections in a classroom library to emphasize the different genres.

Magnets

Locate the magnets in the box. There are five different types of magnets: onsets, rimes, words (separated into four different bags by size), word family labels, and inflectional endings. The word magnets may be further subdivided into bags by families.

Match on the Mat Cards

Locate the Match on the Mat Cards in the box. Divide them into five lettered sets. One set of Match on the Mat Cards will be used with the Match on the Mat Board every fourth unit in the Core Instruction Guide.

Program Setup

Student Folders

Prepare a folder for each student in the program. In the folder you will store assessment results as well as samples of completed work and anecdotal records.

Program Progress Monitoring Charts and Checklists

Print the charts and checklists behind the Program Progress Monitoring tab in the Assessments e-book. Place a copy of each of these forms in each student folder.

Certificates

Print several copies of the certificates on pages 87 and 88. Keep the certificates on hand, and use them when appropriate to praise students for their progress and to recognize achievement milestones.

REVIEWING LEVELS ONE AND TWO

Purpose: To review all 280 Level One and Two words and assess the students' retention of those words when seen in context; to introduce the new genre of poetry

Overview

Before students begin Level Three, use the 12 Review Poems in the Assessments e-book to assess retention of the 280 words taught in Levels One and Two. There are 12 Review Poems provided. Each of the Level One and Two words is used at least once, and many words appear multiple times. Students may reread these poems for additional reading practice.

A Review Poems Word Tracking Chart in the Program Progress Monitoring section of the Assessments e-book makes it easy for a teacher to track a student's retention of the words from Levels One and Two. Any words not retained should be reviewed before the student begins Level Three.

Instructions for administering the Review Poems for assessment purposes are provided at the front of the Review Poems section in the Assessments e-book.

This resource also provides teachers with the tools to teach students about the genre of poetry and to explore such literary devices as rhyme and imagery. Poems focus on different topics and have multiple stanzas.

ADMINISTERING THE COMPREHENSIVE TEST

Purpose: To establish a baseline measurement of how many, if any, of the 125 Level Three words a student already knows

General Guidelines

The Comprehensive Test, located in the Assessments e-book, consists of all 125 new decodable words taught in Level Three. When tested, some students may know only a few words, while other students may not know any of the words.

Testing all 125 words on the same day would be time-consuming and could be discouraging for the student. Therefore, it is suggested you begin by testing only the first 20 words, noting how many words the student recognizes on the Comprehensive Test Checklist.

The Comprehensive Test can be repeated throughout Level Three instruction and upon completion of the program to document student reading progress.

Instructions for administering the Comprehensive Test are provided at the front of the Comprehensive Test section of the Assessments e-book.

Implementing the Program

FLEXIBLE IMPLEMENTATION MODEL

A feature that is new to Level Three of the PCI Reading Program is the ability of the educator to select one of two implementation paths. Because the phonics instruction in Level Three requires that the student recognizes and makes the sounds of 23 onsets and 20 rimes, two clear instructional paths emerge. A student can:

- learn all 23 onsets first and then begin to learn the 20 rimes; or
- learn only the onsets needed to begin the first unit of rime instruction.

Instructional Path One

If the first path is selected, begin instruction using the Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons. You may choose to administer the Letter/Sound Correspondence Test to determine which, if any, onsets a student already recognizes and pronounces correctly. Use the lessons provided until the student has mastered all 23 sounds.

Note: If a student experiences regression and is unable to successfully complete a rime lesson because he or she has forgotten one or more of the onset sounds, stop the rime instruction and review the necessary onsets using the lessons and activities.

Instructional Path Two

If the second path is selected, begin instruction at Unit 1 of the Core Instruction Guide. Pretest the onsets used in Unit 1 to determine which sounds, if any, a student needs to learn before beginning the unit.

Note: Path Two allows students to begin word building, decoding, and reading program books.

Implementation Flowchart

On the facing page is a visual representation of the two instructional path options. The left side of the flowchart represents Instructional Path One, while the right side of the flowchart represents Instructional Path Two. Both paths lead to the instruction of the 23 rimes. A student will not learn to read any new decodable words until he or she begins instruction using the lessons in the Core Instruction Guide. These lessons also provide direct instruction in reading comprehension and fluency.

PHONEMIC AWARENESS

Purpose: To determine which phonemic awareness skills, if any, a student needs, and provide instruction in those skills

Phonemic awareness is the ability to hear, identify, and manipulate the sounds in spoken words. It is the basis for learning phonics. For students who need more practice with phonemic awareness skills, Level Three includes a set of supplemental Phonemic Awareness lessons in the Assessments e-book that can be used to help students improve their discrimination and identification of sounds.

Phonemic Awareness Test

To assess students' level of phonemic awareness, administer the Phonemic Awareness Test provided in the Assessments e-book. This test will give you an overall picture of individual students' gaps in phonemic awareness skills. Use the results of this test to determine which supplemental Phonemic Awareness Lessons to teach.

Phonemic Awareness Lessons

Ten Phonemic Awareness Lessons are provided. Each lesson involves one of the following skills:

- Phoneme Discrimination
- Rhyme Recognition
- Phoneme Identity
- Phoneme Isolation
- Onset-Rime Blending
- Onset-Rime Segmentation
- Phoneme Substitution

The lessons may be used as many times as needed, and variations may be created by switching out the sounds.

Phonemic Awareness Test

Select the phonemic awareness skill or skills you want to assess. Then read the bold words aloud to the student. Record the student's responses on the Phonemic Awareness Test Student Report on page PM 9.

Today we are going to do a sound activity. Listen carefully to the directions I read. If you do not know an answer, say "Pass."

PHONEME DISCRIMINATION

I am going to make two sounds. If the sounds are the same, give me the thumbs-up sign. Model the sign. If the sounds are different, give me the thumbs-down sign. Model the sign.

Listen to two sounds: /p/, /p/. (thumbs-up) Way to go!

Listen to two sounds: /k/, /k/. (thumbs-down) Very good!

Listen to two sounds: /j/, /j/. (thumbs-down) Terrific!

RHYME RECOGNITION

Listen as I say four words: map, cap, hot, tap. One of these words does not rhyme. Listen to the words again: map, cap, hot, tap. Which word does not rhyme? (hot) Fantastic!

Which of these words does not rhyme: sit, bug, pit, fit? (bug) Good job!

Which of these words does not rhyme: hide, ride, side, take? (take) Excellent!

PHONEME IDENTITY

Listen as I say four words: top, ten, take, let. One of these words does not begin with the /t/ sound. Listen again: top, ten, take, let. Which word does not belong? (let) Great!

Listen as I say four words: gun, rip, fix, rug. Which word does not belong? (fix) Correct!

Listen as I say four words: way, yes, win, west. Which word does not belong? (yes) Outstanding!

Phonemic Awareness Lesson

Phoneme Identity

Objective: The student will determine which word within a set has a different initial sound.

- Listen as I say three words: boy, bike, bus. Now you say: boy, bike, bus. Pause for student response. These words all begin with the /b/ sound: /b/ boy, /b/ bike, /b/ bus.
- Listen as I say four words: boy, bike, bus, cow. One of these words does not begin with the /b/ sound. Listen again: boy, bike, bus, cow. Which word does not belong? (cow) Correct!
- Listen as I say four words: game, garden, girl, look. Which word does not belong? (look) Good job!
- Listen as I say four words: some, see, yellow, sad. Which word does not belong? (yellow) Outstanding!
- Listen as I say four words: talk, good, fold, table. Which word does not belong? (good) Fantastic!
- Listen as I say four words: first, yet, yard, yawn. Which word does not belong? (first) Correct!
- Listen as I say four words: horse, home, morning, help. Which word does not belong? (morning) Way to go!
- Listen as I say four words: walk, water, week, party. Which word does not belong? (party) Super!
- Listen as I say four words: firm, food, cake, fun. Which word does not belong? (cake) Fantastic!
- Listen as I say four words: done, zoo, day, dog. Which word does not belong? (zoo) You did it!

Letter/Sound Correspondence

LESSONS

Purpose: To teach and review the sounds of 23 onsets, including consonants and consonant digraphs

Overview

The Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons provide explicit instruction for the 23 initial consonants and digraphs used in Level Three. One lesson is provided for each onset, guiding students from sound discrimination to identification and isolation.

The lesson is formatted across two pages with a lesson script for the facilitator on the left and a student page on the right. When using the book, open it to the selected lesson and have the student sit on your right. This will enable the student to point to illustrations and identify letters as the lesson progresses.

Lesson Formatting

Each lesson plan is fully scripted and uses the same format as the Guided Word Practice Lessons in Levels One and Two:

- Bolded words and sentences should be read aloud to the student.
- Unbolded sentences indicate actions the facilitator should perform.
- Expected student responses are shown in parentheses.

Onset Lesson /b/ b

Point to Line 1. Look at the pictures of boat, belt, and bowl. Boat, belt, and bowl all begin with the same sound. That sound is /b/.

1 Point to your mouth. Watch my mouth as I make the sound /b/ three times: /b/, /b/, /b/. Now you make the sound /b/. Pause for student response. Fantastic!

Listen to the words again: /b/ boat, /b/ belt, /b/ bowl. What sound do you hear at the beginning of boat, belt, and bowl? (/b/) That's right!

Letter/Sound Correspondence

Lessons

The first part of each onset lesson focuses on phonemic awareness and auditory discrimination of the target sound. Students look at pictures, rather than letters, and learn to auditorily isolate the initial sound.

Lessons are fully scripted.

The teacher models the sound visually and auditorily, and the student echoes the pronunciation.

Onset Lesson /r/ r

Point to Line 1. Look at the pictures of rain, rug, and raccoon. Rain, rug, and raccoon all begin with the same sound. That sound is /r/.

1 Point to your mouth. Watch my mouth as I make the sound /r/ three times: /r/, /r/, /r/. Now you make the sound /r/. Pause for student response. Fantastic!

Listen to the words again: /r/ rain, /r/ rug, /r/ raccoon. What sound do you hear at the beginning of rain, rug, and raccoon? (/r/) That's right!

Point to Line 2. What do you see in this picture? (a ring) Correct! The word ring begins with the /r/ sound.

2 Point to your mouth. Watch my mouth as I make the sound /r/ three times: /r/, /r/, /r/. Now you make the sound /r/. Pause for student response. Great!

Listen to the word again: /r/ ring.

Make the sound you hear at the beginning of the word ring. (/r/) Yes!

---

Point to Line 3. What do you see in this picture? (a roof) Very good!

3 Make the sound you hear at the beginning of the word roof. (/r/)

You did it! The word roof begins with the /r/ sound.

PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE 19 LETTER/SOUND CORRESPONDENCE LESSONS

The student is given multiple examples to support auditory discrimination of each sound.

Letter/Sound Correspondence

In the second part of each onset lesson, students identify the initial letter or letters that make the target sound. Exemplar words were selected from Levels One and Two and are familiar to the student.

Letter/sound correspondence is introduced through words the student learned in Levels One and Two.

Correct answers are repeated by the teacher to reinforce learning.

Onset Lesson /r/ r

Read the words. Pause for student response.

These words all begin with the same sound. What sound do you hear at the beginning of the words read, run, ride, red, room, and ready? (/r/) Excellent!

These words also begin with the same letter. What letter does each of these words begin with? (r) Super! Touch the letter r at the beginning of each word. Pause for student response. Good job!

These words all begin with the letter r.

The letter r makes the sound /r/ that you hear at the beginning of the words read, run, ride, red, room, and ready.

Letter/Sound Correspondence

As students transition from the whole-word approach of Levels One and Two to the phonetic focus of Level Three, student pages are designed to look familiar and accessible.

Students read known words from Levels One and Two and then identify the letter that makes the target sound at the beginning of each word.

Letter/Sound Correspondence

Teachers and students will immediately recognize the format of the student pages that go with the third and fourth parts of the onset lesson. They have been designed to look like the Word Building Lesson pages from Levels One and Two. Teachers use the same plastic viewer to focus student attention on one row at a time.

The plastic viewer is used to isolate each row and eliminate distractions.

The student uses the familiar visual discrimination method of Levels One and Two to make the phonics connection between a letter and its sound.

Onset Lesson /r/ r

- Center the plastic viewer on Line 1.
This is the letter r. The letter r makes the sound /r/.
Touch the letter r. Pause for student response. You did it!
- Center the plastic viewer on Line 2.
This is the capital letter R. The capital letter R also makes the sound /r/.
Touch the capital letter R. Pause for student response. Very good!
- Center the plastic viewer on Line 3.
Touch the letter r. Pause for student response.
Make the sound /r/. (/r/) Way to go!
- Center the plastic viewer on Line 4.
Touch the letter r. Pause for student response.
Make the sound /r/. (/r/) Super!
- Center the plastic viewer on Line 5.
Touch the capital letter R. Pause for student response.
Make the sound /r/. (/r/) Terrific!
- Center the plastic viewer on Line 6.
Make the sound. (/r/) Fantastic!
- Center the plastic viewer on Line 7.

PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE 22 LETTER/SOUND CORRESPONDENCE LESSONS

Students are asked to “make the sound” of the onset, connecting the sound to the letter.

Letter/Sound Correspondence

Lessons gradually progress from one distractor to two distractors.

The student learns to associate a sound with both the upper- and lowercase forms of a letter.

ACTIVITIES

Three reproducible activity sheets are included for each onset taught in the program. Activity sheets for the Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons are in the Activity Sheets e-book. The activities should be completed in order as they are sequenced from concrete to abstract. In the first activity, the student associates initial sounds with a letter or letters.

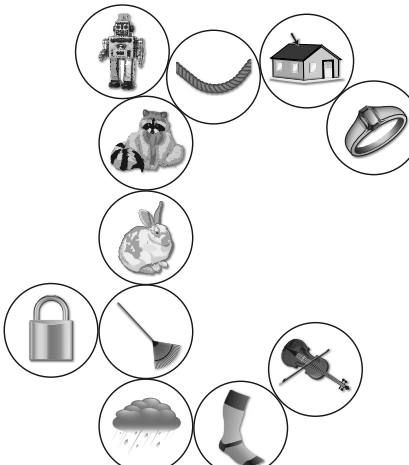

This activity provides additional practice in auditory discrimination and phonemic awareness of initial consonants and digraphs.

Once the correct circles are shaded, the letter is revealed to show letter/sound correspondence.

Name _____ Date _____

Discover the Letter Onset r

Directions: Say the name of each picture. If the name of the picture begins with the /r/ sound, shade the circle. When you are finished, the shaded circles will form the letter that makes the sound /r/.

PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE  7 ACTIVITY SHEETS

Letter/Sound Correspondence

The second activity embeds the word that begins with the target sound in a sentence. The final activity (not shown) requires the student to draw or find pictures of objects that begin with the target sound. The student may complete some or all of the activities at school or at home.

Students use context clues and auditory discrimination to determine the correct answer.

The sentences in this activity are 100% vocabulary controlled to Levels One and Two words, and may be used prior to any Level Three core instruction.

Circle the Picture

Onset r

Directions: For each sentence, circle the picture that begins with the /r/ sound. Then read the sentence.

CORE INSTRUCTION GUIDE

Purpose: To introduce students to 20 word families and provide a seamless system of explicit instruction that integrates phonics, comprehension, fluency, and writing

Overview

The Core Instruction Guide serves as the primary resource for teaching all 20 word family units in Level Three. Each unit is comprised of five fully-scripted lessons that move a student from identifying a word family in words already learned in Levels One and Two, to building new words with onsets and the rime, to reading and writing those new words. This gradual release technique provides a lot of modeling and support as each rime is introduced, but enables greater student independence in later lessons.

Lesson Progression

The first three lessons focus on phonemic awareness and phonics as students first identify a word family and then begin to build new decodable words using onsets and the word family rime. These lessons incorporate visual, auditory, and tactile activities to help the student with retention. The instruction also uses a variety of manipulatives: magnets, Picture Cards, Word Windows and Word Strips. A picture bar along the right edge of each page helps the teacher visualize the steps in the lesson. During each lesson, a student will read and write new decodable words and review previously learned words.

The last two lessons focus primarily on comprehension and fluency. In these lessons, students review the newly learned decodable words but spend the majority of instructional time learning or reviewing a comprehension skill. All the comprehension skills are practiced and reinforced using examples from the student books.

The Lesson 4 comprehension lessons are comprised of surface-level questions designed to assess whether or not the student comprehended what was read in the book. Lesson 5 is comprised of higher-order comprehension questions that require a deeper understanding of the book text. It also contains the Focus on Fluency lessons and assessments. The reading and writing activities still occur with each lessons, but focus mainly on comprehension of the new words and the book.

SIX-STEP LESSON CYCLE

Based on research in curriculum design, each of the five lessons in the Core Instruction Guide uses the same six-step lesson cycle. These six steps reflect the gradual release model of instruction in the progression of lessons. Students always start with what they know in the form of a review. Then, the facilitator models a new skill. This skill is taught explicitly through guided practice that moves from teacher-directed instruction to student-directed learning. Students then apply their new skills in reading and writing activities, ending with independent practice.

Review: -ake, -all

- Today you will sort words from the -ake and -all families.
- Place the word family labels on the magnet board as shown: -ake (for left), -all (for right). Point to each label as you read these directions: If a word belongs to the -ake family, place it on this side of the board. If a word belongs to the -all family, place it on this side of the board.
- Place all the word magnets on the table.
- Pick up a word magnet, and read the word. (e.g., cake) You did it! Do you hear /ayk/ or /awk/ in the word ____ (e.g., cake)? Pause for student response. Super! Now place that word where it belongs on the board.
- Repeat Step 4 until all the words have been sorted correctly.
- Point to the -ake family word list. Read the words. Pause for student response. Way to go!
- Point to the -all family word list. Read the words. Pause for student response. Excellent! Clear the board, and set aside the word magnets.

Model: Onset Sounds

- Place the onset magnets on the table.
- Point to onset b. Make the sound. (/b/) Very good! Note: Model the correct sound of any onset the student misses, and have the student repeat the sound three times.
- Repeat Step 2 with the remaining onsets.

Guided Practice

- You have learned to put two word parts together to make a new word. Place Onset Magnet r and Rime Magnet -ake on the board as shown. Point to onset r, and say /r/. Point to rime -ake, and say /ayk/. Slide the two parts together, and say rake.
- Now it's your turn. Slide onset r and rime -ake apart. Point to the letter r. Pause for student response. Say /r/. (/r/) Point to -ake. Pause for student response. Say /ayk/. (/ayk/) Now slide the two parts together. Pause for student response. Read the word. (/rake) Terrific!
- Point to the word rake. This is the word rake. Show the student Picture Card 10: rake. This is a picture of a rake. The word rake is made up of two parts: /r/ and /ayk/.

Using the Lesson Plans

The six steps are designated by colored bars along the left side of each lesson page. This visual cue makes it easy for a teacher to know where the student is in the progression of the lesson cycle.

Review: -ake, -all

1. Today you will sort words from the -ake and -all families. ●
2. Place the word family labels on the magnet board as shown: -ake (far left), -all (far right). Point to each label as you read these directions: If a word belongs to the -ake family, place it on this side of the board. If a word belongs to the -all family, place it on this side of the board.
3. Place all the word magnets on the table. ●
4. Pick up a word magnet, and read the word. (e.g., cake) You did it! Do you hear /ayk/ or /awl/ in the word ____ (e.g., cake)? Pause for student response. Super! Now place that word where it belongs on the board.
5. Repeat Step 4 until all the words have been sorted correctly. ●
6. Point to the -ake family word list. Read the words. Pause for student response. Way to go!
7. Point to the -all family word list. Read the words. Pause for student response. Excellent! Clear the board, and set aside the word magnets.

Bolded words and sentences should be read aloud to the student.

Expected student responses are shown in parentheses.

Unbolded sentences indicate actions the facilitator should perform.

The lesson cycle is designed for flexible implementation. Some students may be able to complete several steps within the lesson cycle during one reading session. Other students may need to focus only on one step during each reading session. The rate of presentation is to be based upon student need and ability.

Step 4 in Lessons 4 and 5 of each unit will require more time to complete. During these lessons, the student will be reading the book for the unit, which make take several reading sessions to complete.

The student uses multiple modalities (visual, kinesthetic, and auditory) to combine onsets and rimes. This procedure is repeated throughout the units and becomes familiar routine.

Core Instruction

Each lesson is color-coded to clearly show the six steps of the lesson cycle. Images of the materials needed to complete each activity are presented on the right side of each page. Facilitators can use these images as guides for how to display the manipulatives.

Lessons are fully scripted. Text is formatted as follows: Unbolded sentences indicate actions the facilitator should perform. Bolded words and sentences should be read aloud to the student. Expected student responses are shown in parentheses.

Each lesson includes practice in reading and writing new decodable words.

Core Instruction

The fourth and fifth lessons in each Core Instruction Guide unit emphasize comprehension of the unit's book and explicit instruction in a comprehension skill. While comprehension is the focus, the review step of these lessons provides practice with the unit's word family to ensure retention.

The student sorts the target word family from a previously learned family.

Model: Comprehension Skill *Main Idea

1. Introduce the comprehension skill of main idea: Today we will talk about the main idea of a story. The main idea of a story is what the story is mostly about. Listen as I read a story, and think about what the story is mostly about.

There are many fun things people can do at the ocean. Swimming in the water is one fun thing people can do at the ocean. Looking for shells is another fun thing to do. Some people even enjoy playing beach volleyball.

The story I just read is mostly about fun things people can do at the beach. Swimming, looking for shells, and playing beach volleyball are fun things to do at the beach. Fun things people can do at the beach is the main idea of the story.
2. Listen as I read another story, and think about what the story is mostly about.

Frank has a pet dog with brown fur and big paws. Frank feeds the dog and takes it on walks everyday. Frank teaches the dog to do tricks, and he plays fetch with his pet dog. Frank even lets the dog sleep in his bedroom at night.

The story is mostly about how Frank cares for his dog. Frank feeds his dog, takes it on walks, teaches it tricks, and plays with it. How Frank cares for his dog is the main idea of the story.

PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE

Explicit instruction and practice for ten comprehension skills are provided. The ten skills were determined through a comparison of alternative assessment reading objectives across nine states.

Core Instruction

Lesson 4 of each unit provides extensive modeling and guided practice in a comprehension skill. This instruction precedes the reading of the unit's book so that students can keep the new skill in mind as they read.

The student practices a comprehension skill.

Unit 3 -ake Lesson 4

Guided Practice

1. Now it's your turn to tell me the main idea of a story. Listen as I read another story, and think about what the story is mostly about.
Susan has three favorite games. Susan loves to hit the baseball and run around the bases. At school, Susan plays basketball with her friends. Every weekend, Susan plays checkers with her sister.
What is the story mostly about? (Susan's three favorite games) Correct! Susan likes to play baseball, basketball, and checkers. These are Susan's three favorite games. Susan's three favorite games is the main idea of the story.
2. Let's try that again. Listen as I read another story, and think about what the story is mostly about.
There is an old house on our street. It needs new paint. One of the windows is broken, and there is a hole in the roof. Someone needs to work on that old house and fix it up!
What is the main idea of this story? (The old house needs to be fixed up.) Fantastic! The old house needs new paint, has a broken window, and has a hole in the roof. The main idea of this story is that the old house needs to be fixed up. Remember, the main idea of a story is what the story is mostly about.

Reading

1. Show the student Book 45. Today you are going to read this book. This book tells about the different kinds of jobs people do to earn money. We will talk about the main idea of this book after you have finished reading.
2. Have you ever earned money by doing a job?
If yes: Tell me about the job.
If no: Can you name some jobs that people do to earn money?
3. Hand the book to the student. Read the title of this book. (Good Jobs)
You did it!
Open the book, and look in the word box.
Point to each word as you read it aloud.
Turn to the next page, and read the story aloud.
After the student has read the book, congratulate him or her.
4. Let's look at the book again and talk about what is happening.

CORE INSTRUCTION GUIDE 47

The student is introduced to a new book. Prior knowledge is established, and the student is given a reason for reading the book.

Core Instruction

Comprehension questions are presented for the unit's book in both Lessons 4 and 5. In Lesson 4, these questions focus on literal comprehension, making sure the student understands the main points of nonfiction books and the story progression of fiction books.

The teacher leads the student back through the book to answer literal comprehension questions.

Unit 3 -ake Lesson 4

The comprehension skill for the unit is reviewed.

Unit 3 -ake Lesson 4

PAGES 12 & 13:
Point to the girl in the picture on page 12. What kind of store does this girl work in? (a big food store) Yes, this girl works in a big food store. Her job is to help keep the store clean. But sometimes she helps people take their food out to their cars. On many days, she works in the morning.

4. Allow the student to complete the remaining items independently.

CORE INSTRUCTION GUIDE 49

Activities pertain to the book and offer additional practice in reading comprehension.

READ-ALOUD BOOK

Purpose: To provide practice reading the word family words in context of sentences and paragraphs

Overview

The Read-Aloud Book is used in Lessons 1 and 3 of each unit. No photocopying is required. The facilitator can open the book to the appropriate page and have the student read the sentences aloud. Words from the unit's word family are underlined because this is the student's first time encountering decodable words in context.

The student learns to recognize the unit's rime family words in context.

Many of the rime family words featured in Lesson 1 are words that the student already learned in Levels One and Two.

Unit 3 -ake Lesson 1

1 I have to ake up the hay my horse did not eat.

2 The ake is ready. Now all I need to get for the party are some cold drinks.

PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE 6 READ-ALOUD BOOK

Core Instruction

Read-Aloud pages feature the words from the unit's word family in context. Each new word is underlined to help students identify that it is one of the words they have just learned to build and decode.

The Read-Aloud for Lesson 3 features newly learned decodable words in the context of a sentence.

A variety of sentence types are used so that students can practice reading with expression.

The image shows a page from a read-aloud book. At the top, there is a header with an open book icon, the text "Unit 3" in a circle, the word "-ake" in a circle, and "Lesson 3". Below the header are six numbered sentences, each with a word from the "-ake" family underlined. A dotted line from the callout box on the right points to the underlined word "wake" in sentence 4. At the bottom of the page, there is a footer with "PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE", the number "7", and "READ-ALoud BOOK".

1 The man told us, "When a quake begins, move into a room or hall and sit near a wall."

2 My mom likes to bake a cake for our family on the weekend. Sometimes she will let me help her.

3 I found the rake in the yard, so I will put it away.

4 What time did you wake up today? You look like you need some more sleep.

5 No, that animal is not fake. I saw it move!

6 After my dog gets out of the bay, she will shake to get the water off.

WRITE AND READ WORKBOOK

Purpose: To provide writing activities that are integrated with the reading instruction

Overview

The Write and Read Workbook contains one activity for each lesson in the Core Instruction Guide. Five Write and Read Workbooks are included in the program. Each student should have his or her own workbook. Should you require more than five Write and Read Workbooks, they are available for purchase at www.pcieducation.com or by calling 800-594-4263.

Students use auditory discrimination to identify words in the target word family.

Students practice writing word family words.

Make a List Unit 3 -ake Lesson 1

Directions: Read the words in the box. Circle the words that have -ake in them. Then write each circled word on a line.

PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE 12 WRITE AND READ WORKBOOK

Core Instruction

The first two Write and Read activities for each unit focus on writing the unit's word family words in isolation. Activities three and four require the student to write target and review words to complete cloze sentences. This integrates writing with reading comprehension. The last activity provides a template for students to write a book report about the unit's book, using writing to make personal connections to text.

Complete the Sentences		Unit 3 -ake Lesson 4
Directions: Each sentence from Book 45 – Good Jobs is missing a word. Choose the word that best completes each sentence, and write it on the blank line. Then read the sentences.
1	People _____ money by working at a job.	make use
2	"Each morning when the dogs _____ up, I let them outside into the yard to run and play."	open wake
3	Here is a girl who works in a shop where people make little _____ like these.	eggs cakes
4	"On many days, I _____ at the store in the morning."
5	"The flowers here are not _____. They need water every day."

PCI READING PROGRAM LEVEL THREE 15

Sentences are taken directly from the book for the unit.

Answer choices feature new decodable words and review words.

Write a Book Report		Unit 3 -ake Lesson 5

ACTIVITY SHEETS E-BOOK

Purpose: To provide independent practice in decoding and reading comprehension

Overview

Reproducible activities for each unit can be found in the Activity Sheets e-book. The first three activities for each unit focus on the unit's word family words.

The student uses phonemic awareness to isolate the initial consonant sound of a word and uses phonics to determine which letter makes that sound.

STUDENT BOOKS

Purpose: To promote fluency and comprehension and to introduce students to the differences between the genres of fiction and nonfiction

Overview

For each of the twenty units in the Core Instruction Guide, a student book has been developed that incorporates all the words in that unit's word family, along with words from Levels One and Two and previously learned word families. Like Levels One and Two, Level Three includes fiction, but it also introduces students to nonfiction with ten high-interest topics. Each book is 16 pages long. Nonfiction books generally include one or more photographs per page, and fiction books generally feature one illustration every other page.

Using the Word List

Each book lists all of the words from the featured word family on page 1. Before a student reads the book, have him or her read this list. Encourage the student to point out the ending letters of each word that form the word family.

bake

fake

lake

make quake

rake

shake

take

wake

Core Instruction

Fiction

The ten fiction books in Level Three feature full-color illustrations. The main character of each book is an adolescent, and the story reflects the topic introduced in the preceding nonfiction book. For example, Book 45 introduces students to a number of jobs they might explore for post-school employment. The fiction book that follows is the story of a high school student's first day on the job at a garden store. The main character in Book 46 is nonverbal and uses a communication book. He is shown interacting with his job coach and coworkers, using his book to communicate.

Each fiction book reflects the topic from the nonfiction book that precedes it.

Books feature full-color illustrations from a variety of illustrators.

One illustration is featured per spread.

Dialogue is included, featuring quotation marks and standard punctuation.

Pages have up to five paragraphs each.

Ray and I go to the garden that is inside the store. There are many flowers here. Ray tells me that these flowers are not fake, so they need water. He gives me a watering can and shows me how much to water each flower. I begin to water the flowers on the tables near the back wall.

The store just opened, and Ray is working away to make all the flowers look their best. He moves all the yellow ones together and all the red ones together.

Ray talks while he works, "When people who shop at Green Things come to look at these flowers, they move the flowers around to find the ones they like best. But people do not always put the flowers back where they were. Then the flowers do not look nice."

"I come here first thing each morning to see how everything looks," Ray tells me. "Jake likes the store to look nice. He pays me to work, so I want to do a good job."

Ray keeps talking, "Before too many people get to the store each day, I walk around outside and then inside the store. If something needs to be done, I just do it. No one has to ask me or tell me first."

"I know you do not get money for working here, Dan. But you are here to find out what working is like. People at a job should not have to be watched all the time to make sure they are working."

Core Instruction

Nonfiction

The ten nonfiction books in Level Three all use full-color photographs to present information about a given topic. Topics represent high-interest subjects, such as jobs, pets, and outdoor fun. Many of the themes support social studies or science, facilitating integrated learning.

Nonfiction book topics are real-world and high-interest.

Books feature full-color photographs of real-world activities.

Pages have up to three paragraphs of text.

This boy has a job at a place where dogs can stay when the people who own them are out of town. Some of the animals come here for two days, while others stay for a week or more. What does this boy have to say about his job?

"My job is to play with the dogs, give them food, and keep everything clean. Each morning when the dogs wake up, I let them outside into the yard to run and play. Then I give the dogs their food. The dogs go back outside while I clean up."

"At my job, there are many different kinds of dogs. Some of them are small, and some are tall."

"When the dogs first get here, some of them do not like it. They quake and shake because they do not know where they are. But soon most of them begin to have fun. They even like it when I help them get clean. And, as you know, dogs always like to shake the water off!"

"At night, the dogs go to sleep in their beds, and I go home. I think I have the best job. After all, I get to play with dogs every day!"

Word family words integrate seamlessly into the text.

Core Instruction

Nonfiction Features

Many of the nonfiction books also include features representative of the genre. For example, some books have a map, chart, diagram, or other graphic source of information. Two books feature subheadings, and one book includes captions. Each nonfiction book lists the included features on the back cover. Lessons 4 and 5 in each odd-numbered Core Instruction Guide unit point out these features and provide instruction on strategies for using these features to improve comprehension.

Section Headings

WATER PARK

A water park is another fun place to go. Just like many other parks, people have to pay to come inside. But after that, they can go on each ride as many times as they want. If people want something to eat, they have to pay for their food and drinks.

People go to this kind of park when it is warm outside. These parks have many different water rides. There are so many things to do that some people stay and play all day long.

Charts

Cats like to make up their own fun games. A cat may bat at a ball to make it move, run down a hall after the ball, pin it, and then hit the ball again.

To keep a cat happy, people should give it food two times every day. They must also put out clean water for the cat to drink. Cats who live inside need a pan to use when they have to go.

Cats like to stay clean, and they can do that on their own. But people do need to keep the cat pan clean.

Timelines

Cowgirls have been around a long time. They were the same now as they were way back then. But people have made some new things through the years.

Look at these things that cowboys and cowgirls use. The dot under each one tells you when it was first made. Can you name each one?

These things have made the job better for cowboys and cowgirls, but the job is a lot of work, even today. Is it the kind of job you would like to have someday?

WHEN WERE THESE THINGS MADE?

Maps

There are many different kinds of animals in this family. Some live where it is warm or hot all year, and others live where it is cold. They all have a wing on each side, but they do not all use the wing in the same ways.

The next time you are outside, look around. You may see one of these animals. It could be in a tree, at a park, near the ocean, on a lake, or in your own backyard. These kinds of animals are everywhere!

MATCH ON THE MAT

Purpose: To provide a hands-on activity for building and assessing comprehension

Overview

Like Levels One and Two, Level Three includes a Match on the Mat activity in which students match cards with lines of text to the appropriate illustration. This comprehension activity has become a favorite of both teachers and students because it allows students to make matches and then go back and self-correct if they made an error in an early match.

In Level Three, there are five sets of Match on the Mat cards. They are incorporated into Units 4, 8, 12, 16, and 20 as part of Lesson 5.

Allow students to discover incorrect matches and self-correct.

Tactile comprehension activity.

Match on the Mat

Dad said, "Your bike was not next to the tan wall this morning. I had to move the bike out of the way to back the car out and go to work. Be sure to put the bike next to the tan wall after you use it."		I am so happy because my big sister will come home today. She has been away at school for many weeks. We will bake a cake to show her that we are happy to have her home again.
My sister and I own a tan horse. Every day, my sister gives our horse some hay to eat, and I give him some water to drink.		We were playing in the backyard when my brother said, "Look up in this tall tree. Do you see the blue joy?" I did not see it at first. Then I saw it move.
I helped my dad clean our van today. Dad let me put water all over the outside of the van. Then we worked together to get every side clean. Now the van looks like new again!		I could not go to sleep because my bedroom was too warm. So I got up and turned on the fan. That made me feel better, and I went to sleep.
Do you see the woman helping her two little boys get into the green van? One boy has a ball. I think they may be going to the city park to play.		Mom told my friend and me to go outside to play with our cars. She does not want us to wake up my little sister, who is sleeping. It is more fun to play with this kind of car outside anyway.
I helped my dad clean up our backyard last weekend. Each of us worked with a rake. At the end of the day, we picked up all of these and put them near the street.		My mom, my sister, and I are going to ride the bus downtown. We are going to a big mall to get some things we need for school.

Some cards share similar wording and phrases to encourage accurate reading.

UNIT TESTS

Purpose: To provide data on student progress in decoding the word family words and comprehending the book for each unit

Overview

Each unit has a four-page Unit Test that covers both the unit's word family words and the unit's book.

To assess word decoding ability, the student selects a word from the word box and writes it below its matching picture.

The Unit Test assesses student understanding of phonics and comprehension. The first two pages focus on word decoding.

Core Instruction

The first two pages of the Unit Test assess the student's mastery of the word family words, first through illustrations and then through a cloze activity. Completing a cloze passage is an effective way to assess comprehension. Filling in the missing words causes a student to activate prior knowledge and predict meaning.

Cloze procedure is used to assess the student's ability to decode and comprehend new words in the context of a sentence.

Program Assessments

ASSESSMENTS E-BOOK

Purpose: To provide pretests, posttests, and monitoring charts and checklists for continuous progress monitoring

Overview

The assessments for Level Three have been collected into one e-book to make tests and checklists easy to locate. Teachers will use this e-book throughout Level Three as it includes pretests, charts and checklists to use during instruction, and Unit Tests.

Six Sections

The Assessments e-book has been organized into six sections, reflecting the different resources it includes. Each section has its own introduction with directions for how to use those particular assessments and other resources.

Section 1 – Review Poems

Section 2 – Phonemic Awareness and Phonics

Section 3 – Fluency

Section 4 – Comprehensive Test

Section 5 – Unit Tests

Section 6 – Program Progress Monitoring Charts and Checklists

Review Poems

The Review Poems (see page 28) are included in this e-book because they are used to assess students' retention of the Levels One and Two words in context. This section includes directions for use, a Word Location and Frequency Chart, and the 12 reproducible poems.

Phonemic Awareness and Phonics

This section includes the Phonemic Awareness pretest, ten Phonemic Awareness lessons (see page 32), a Phonemic Awareness Checklist, and a Letter/Sound Correspondence Test. The Letter/Sound Correspondence Test may be used to assess students' preknowledge of the 23 onsets used in Level Three.

Program Assessments

Fluency

This section contains 25 supplemental fluency lessons to help students read faster, make fewer reading errors, and improve expression. There are five lessons for each of the core fluency skills: accuracy, rate, smoothness, phrasing, and expression. Included in this section is also a detailed description of how to rate each fluency skill when completing the fluency assessments in Units 5, 10, 15, and 20.

Comprehensive Test

As in Levels One and Two, Level Three provides a comprehensive test of the 125 words taught in the program. Teachers should administer this test two or three times per year: the beginning of the year (as a baseline), the middle of the year (to monitor progress), and the end of the year (to record the number of words mastered). See page 29 for more information.

Unit Tests

All 20 Unit Tests can be found in this section. Each Unit Test is comprised of four pages and assesses word identification and decoding and book comprehension. See pages 66–69 for the features of the Unit Test.

Program Progress Monitoring Charts and Checklists

This section collects all the charts and checklists used in the program to collect and record data. Teachers should make a copy of each of these charts and checklists for each student and place them in the student's folder (see page 27).

Of particular note, the Core Instruction Program Progress Chart is similar to the Program Progress Charts from Levels One and Two. At a glance, it provides teachers with the overall progress of each student and includes places to collect data on the activities the student has completed, such as Match on the Mat.

Building Fluency with Accuracy

[[ Frequent opportunities to practice identifying words through meaningful reading and writing experiences help the reader to achieve automatic word identification or automaticity. ]]

Worthy, J., & Broadbent, K.
Fluency beyond the primary grades: From group performance to silent, independent reading. The Reading Teacher

Objective The student will read new decodable words with accuracy.

Materials

- a word list at the front of a book the student has already read in the PCI Reading Program
- a timer or stopwatch

Method

Explain to the student that he or she will practice reading with accuracy. Remind the student that reading with accuracy means to read each word correctly.

Show the selected word list to the student. Explain that he or she has read the words before. Tell the student that you are going to count how many of the words he or she reads correctly in ten seconds.

Tell the student to begin, and start the timer. If the student pauses at a word for three seconds, say the word and tell the student to continue reading. Count this as an error. Misread words also count as errors.

Repeat the method using the same word list until the student is able to read all the words accurately in ten seconds or less.

Variations

1. Select a word list from another book the student has already read, and repeat the method.
2. Allow the student to practice reading the words with a partner before doing the ten-second timed reading.

Modifications and Accommodations

Comprehensive Test

For students with communication challenges, orally dictate words in random order. Allow the student to point to the corresponding words on the page using his or her finger, a pen light, or another pointing device.

For students who need a more tactile approach, place 3–5 word magnets on the Magnet Board. Orally dictate words in random order, and allow the student to select the corresponding word magnets.

For students who use sign language to communicate, allow the student to respond by signing each word after you point to it.

For students who use voice output devices to communicate, program the words into the device. Label each button on the device with the corresponding word. Orally dictate words in random order, and allow the student to indicate their response by pushing a button on the output device.

For students who require less visual input when looking at a printed page, use a blank piece of paper to cover half the words on the page.

Letter/Sound Correspondence Lessons

For students with incremental learning needs, separate the lessons into two parts: Phonemic Awareness and Phonics. Each Letter/Sound Correspondence Lesson consists of eight pages (four teacher pages and four student pages). The first two pages of each lesson focus on phonemic awareness. The remaining six pages focus on phonics. Allow the student to successfully master phonemic awareness of the 23 onsets before moving on to phonics (associating the phoneme with a letter or letters).

Core Instruction

For students to progress at their own rate, the Core Instruction Guide lessons may be paced accordingly. A student may move as fast as completing one lesson per day, or as slow as completing one step of the lesson cycle each day (i.e., Monday–Review, Tuesday–Model, Wednesday–Guided Practice, Thursday–Reading, Friday–Writing, etc.).

For students who require more room to sort magnets into word families, turn the Magnet Board on its side. Place a word family label on each side of the board. Changing the orientation of the board will allow the words in each family to be more separated. Instead of having the student sort three word families as in Lessons 3 and 4, let the student sort the family words for the current unit from one of the review word families. Then clear the board, and have the student sort the family words for the current unit from the other review word family.

For students who need additional practice in building words with inflectional endings and/or building and reading character names used in the books, have the student build each word one at a time. After the word is built with magnets, ask the student to write the word on the Magnet Board with a dry-erase marker. This extra kinesthetic step will help reinforce the new decodable word in the student's memory.

Modifications and Accommodations

For students having difficulty comprehending the meaning of new decodable words, have him or her match the word magnets to the Picture Cards several times. Then mix up the Picture Cards, and ask the student to name each picture. Finally, have the student turn over a picture card, point to the correct word magnet, and then write the word on the Magnet Board with a dry-erase marker.

For students with echolalia or auditory processing challenges, make the verbal cues more concise by eliminating some words. For example, instead of saying "Read the word," say "Read." Alternatively, verbal cues may be replaced with visual cues. For example, use a raised pointed finger to indicate "Touch"; point to your lips to indicate "Say" or "Make the sound"; use sign language for the letter r, and move it as if you are reading a book to indicate "Read." Also, consider the use of visual praise cards to replace verbal praise. For example, instead of saying "Great job" or "Super," create small visual cards with a smiley face, a thumbs-up, or a positive sticker on each card. Hand the student a card, or place a card on the table after a correct response.

Read-Aloud Book

For students with attention problems, use the plastic viewer to isolate each item on the Read-Aloud activity.

For students with communication challenges, orally dictate sentences in random order, and allow the student to point to the corresponding sentence. Alternatively, place three sentences on a voice output device. Orally dictate sentences in random order, and ask the student to point to the correct sentence. Then program the voice output device to "read" the sentence aloud.

Write and Read Workbook

For students who cannot write, select Write and Read worksheets that can be completed with letter or word magnets instead of a pencil. Lay the Magnet Board down on a flat surface, and place the Write and Read page on top of the Magnet Board. Put the letters or word magnets that correspond to the correct answers on the table. Allow the student to "fill in the blank" or build the correct word by placing the correct magnets on the page.

For students with dysgraphia or for whom writing is particularly laborious, designate a scribe to write for them. The student can tell the scribe the letter or word that he or she would like the scribe to write. This technique may be especially helpful on the book report in Lesson 5.

Modifications and Accommodations

Activity Sheets

For students who need repeated practice, lay a transparency over the Activity Sheet and work the activity with the student until the page is completed. Then remove the transparency, and allow the student to complete the activity independently.

For students who have difficulty with generalization, make two copies of each Activity Sheet. Allow the student to complete the activity at school, and then ask the student to complete the second copy of the activity at home.

Books

For students who struggle with decoding in context, allow additional reading time as necessary. Some students may need several days to read the 16-page books cover to cover. For these students, orally review what happened on each page the student read on a previous day, before allowing the student to continue reading where he or she left off. Divide up the scripted comprehension questions, and ask only the questions that correspond with the text read for each day.

For students with communication challenges, allow the student to point to the words as the teacher “voices” for the student. The student may also read silently, then point to pictures and/or words in the book to answer comprehension questions.

Match on the Mat

For students with communication challenges, allow the student to read the Text Cards silently, and demonstrate understanding by making the correct match.

Alternatively, record one set of Match on the Mat Text Cards using a voice output device. Record the Text Cards in random order. Have the student listen to the recording and place the Text Cards on the mat in the order recorded. Then, have the student listen to the recording again and place each Scene Card next to the matching Text Card.

For Additional Phonemic Awareness Practice

See the Sound

Ask the student to look at your mouth as you make the same consonant sound twice. Then ask the student if your mouth looked the same each time you made the consonant sound. Vary making the same consonant sound twice with making two different consonant sounds.

Find the Rhyme

Say a sentence in which two words rhyme, and ask the student to repeat the two rhyming words.

Examples: This is my pie. (my, pie)
Did you see that bee? (see, bee)
The van is tan. (van, tan)

Words, Words, Words

Say a word, and ask the student to say as many words as he or she can think of that begin with the same sound.

Examples: fast: funny, fire, fish, phone work: watch, we, win, wonderful soap: sit, save, sound, send

For Additional Phonics Practice

Picture Sorts

Select a consonant sound that the student has learned. Collect pictures of objects that begin with that sound and pictures of objects that begin with different consonant sounds. Place the onset magnet that corresponds to the selected consonant sound on the Magnet Board, and lay the Magnet Board flat on the table. Ask the student to name each picture. If the picture begins with the selected consonant sound, the student should lay the picture on the Magnet Board. If the picture does not begin with the selected consonant sound, the student should set the picture aside.

Say It/Write It

Select a consonant sound that the student has learned. Use a dry-erase marker, and write the corresponding letter on the Magnet Board. Ask the student to name the letter and make the sound. Then allow the student to use the dry-erase marker to practice writing the letter on the Magnet Board while repeating the letter name and sound.

Rime Family Spinners

Make spinners using paper plates, brads, and arrows cut from poster board. Decide how many sections you want on each spinner, and use a marker to draw the lines on the paper plates. Make sure the segments on each paper plate are of equal size. Write one rime in each segment, and then attach the arrows to the middle of the plates using the brads. Allow the student to select one spinner. The student spins the arrow, then says or writes down as many words as he or she can think of that belong to the designated rime family.

Tic-Tac-Toe

Draw a tic-tac-toe board on a piece of paper. Write a rime family label above the game board, and write an onset letter(s) in each of the nine squares. Players claim squares by choosing an onset and orally combining it with the designated rime.

Memory

Use twenty unlined index cards. Select at least two rime families, and write one rime family on each of ten index cards. On each of the other ten index cards, write an onset letter that will make a word when combined with one of the rime cards. Mix the cards together, and lay them in a 4 x 5 grid pattern face down in front of the student. Ask the student to turn over two cards. When both cards are a rime family or an onset letter, the cards are turned back over, and the next player takes a turn. When one card is an onset letter and the other card is a rime, the player orally combines the onset and the rime and reads the word aloud. Then, the player gets to keep the cards and take another turn. Take turns until all of the cards have been combined to make actual words.

For Additional Comprehension Practice

Which Words?

Select a sentence from a Lesson 3 Read-Aloud the student has read before. Write the sentence on a sentence strip or the Magnet Board, but replace one of the words with a blank line. Write a Level 3 program word that has been taught on each of ten unlined index cards. Ask the student to read the sentence, and then select all the index cards that contain a word which could be used correctly to fill in the blank. Then have the student read the sentence aloud, inserting one of the selected words from the index cards. Have the student reread the sentence until all the selected words have been used.

Act It Out

Select a book the student has read before. Choose a short passage from the selected book, and ask the student to read it silently. Then ask the student to act out what was read.

Teaching Extensions

Retell the Story

Select a book the student has read before. Choose a page from the selected book, and read it aloud to the student as he or she follows along. When you have finished reading, ask the student to explain to you what happened in the part of the story you read aloud.

Book Review

Ask the student to choose the fiction student book he or she liked best or liked least. Have the student tell about the parts of the book he or she liked or did not like. Prompt opinions about the book with questions such as:

- “What did you like best (or least) about this part of the story?”
- “Did you like the ending of the story?”
- “Would you recommend this book to a friend? Why or why not?”

This activity enables a student to demonstrate comprehension and to retell the details of the story.

Make Your Own Ending

Have the student to choose the fiction book he or she liked best or liked least. Ask the student to come up with a different ending to the story. Then, prompt the student with questions about why he or she chose that ending.

Ask the Author

Have the student choose his or her favorite nonfiction book. Ask the student to tell you three additional things he or she would like to know about the book topic. Prompt the student by asking, “If you could ask the author to give you more details about something in this book, what would you want to know?”

I’m That Character

Have the student choose a main character in any of the student books that reminds the student of himself or herself. Ask the student why he or she chose that character and to give more details about how they are the same and different.

Say Something

Choose a book that the student had some difficulty reading. Have the student read each page aloud. Following the reading of each page, the student should say something: ask a question, state an opinion, make a connection to something already read, or respond by making a personal connection to the text. You may want to have prompts (using words the student can read) displayed on index cards to remind the student how to begin his or her responses, such as “I like...,” “I can tell that...,” “I do not like...,” “I did that one time when...,” etc.

Parent Letter

Dear Parent or Guardian:

Date: ____/____/____

This school year, your child will be building upon his or her reading skills with Level Three of the PCI Reading Program. Your child is now ready to take the words he or she learned in Levels One and Two and begin to identify the letters that make up those words. Your child will be learning basic decoding skills essential to reading success. In Level Three, your child will:

- identify and pronounce 23 beginning consonant sounds (onsets)
- identify and pronounce 20 word families, such as -at, -ake, and -ill
- blend beginning consonants and word families to make 125 new words
- read 10 nonfiction and 10 fiction books
- build and demonstrate comprehension skills
- improve fluency of oral reading

Along with this letter, I am sending a list of the word families and words your child will be learning to read. As your child learns these word families, help him or her look for words in those families in books, newspapers, magazines, recipes, and directions/instructions.

Ask your child about the books he or she is reading throughout the year. Encourage your child to retell the stories to you.

When your child brings home activity sheets, read and go over the directions on each page. Then listen as your child reads the words and phrases. Praise him or her for completing the activities correctly and for being a good reader.

I look forward to working with your child this year.

Sincerely,
