

About the Author

Carolyn C. Wilson, M.S., CCC-SLP, is a speech-language pathologist in private practice in Fort Worth, Texas. She specializes in providing evaluations and intervention for children and adolescents who experience learning or social language problems related to language disorders. She has authored or co-authored a number of clinical books in these areas. Carolyn began her career in 1975 as a public school speech-language clinician and later served as instructor and clinical coordinator in speech-language pathology at Texas Christian University.

Dedication

Room 14 is dedicated with love to Jonathan who makes it all worthwhile and to my husband, Russell, whose encouragement makes it all possible.

Acknowledgment

I wish to thank Russell Wilson, M.Div., Sherrie Wilson, B.A., and Patsy Dickens, M.F.A., CCC-SLP for applying their various areas of professional expertise to reading and commenting on the Room 14 manuscript.
