

About the Author

Patti Koski, M.S., CCC-SLP, is a speech-language pathologist in Baltimore, Maryland. Through private therapy, Patti primarily works with children on the autism spectrum. Her Matt and Molly stories have played an important part in her therapy sessions for the last 20 years. When she is not working with her clients or writing new stories, Patti is busy raising four “socially appropriate” children.

Dedications

Creating this set of Matt and Molly stories was a group effort! As always, I had the support of my awesome husband, Matt. He gave me the time and encouragement needed to illustrate and write these new stories. My children – Luke, Noah, Ben, and Grace – shared many fun ideas with me. They think it is “totally cool” that their mom is an author!

Every story in this set was based on a real situation that involved one of my students. I’m sure it was not funny when it happened at the time, but I do believe that things happen for a reason. Thank you to the brave parents and teachers who have muddled through these social mishaps (and shared the stories) so that we could learn from them.
