

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Sherry L. Milchick is an educational consultant with the Pennsylvania Training and Technical Assistance Network. Her areas of concentration are behavior support, adolescent literacy, autism, and leadership. She is a board certified behavior analyst and holds a supervisory certificate in special education, a master of education degree in special education from Mansfield State University, and a bachelor of science degree in special education from Pennsylvania State University. Milchick is currently pursuing her doctorate in educational administration at Duquesne University. Milchick coordinates Pennsylvania's behavior initiative, which includes school-wide effective behavior support training, classroom management training, and functional behavior assessment with behavior intervention planning and implementation. Previously, Milchick served as the supervisor of special education in a public school district, and as a special education teacher in elementary and secondary public school settings for 12 years.
