

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Marcia Stamer, PT, MH, C/NDT, is a physical therapist who has spent her career specializing in intervention with children and adults with cerebral palsy and similar disabilities. She teaches continuing education courses related to cerebral palsy and has held adjunct faculty positions in colleges and universities, teaching physical therapist and physical therapist assistant students. She is the editor of NDTA's Network, the official publication of the Neuro-Developmental Treatment Association, and is a former coordinator-instructor for the NDTA.