

About the Authors

Laura M. Justice, Ph.D., is a clinical speech-language pathologist and applied researcher in early childhood language and literacy development, communication disorders, and educational interventions. Dr. Justice is EHE Distinguished Professor in the School of Teaching and Learning at The Ohio State University and Executive Director of the Crane Center for Early Childhood Research and Policy and the Schoenbaum Family Center. Justice has published more than 100 articles on early education and language/literacy intervention and has authored or edited 10 books.

Helen K. Ezell, Ph.D., CCC-SLP, is a speech-language pathologist who specializes in children's language and early literacy development. In addition to her clinical research, her experience includes preparation of teacher-scholars in speech-language pathology.

Mary Beth Schmitt, Ph.D., CCC-SLP, is an assistant professor at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in the Department of Speech, Language, and Hearing Sciences. Through her research, Dr. Schmitt investigates child-level and treatment-level aspects of language therapy that affect outcomes for children with language disorders. To date, Dr. Schmitt has authored and co-authored more than 16 peer-reviewed papers and six book chapters and commentaries related to children with language disorders. Dr. Schmitt currently serves as the editor for EBP Briefs, a peer-reviewed publication supporting evidence-based practice for practitioners.