About the Author

Mary Ann Mokhemar, MS, CCC-SLP, earned master’s degrees in both speech pathology and audiology from the University of Michigan in 1973. Later, she received an Ed.S. from the University of Georgia, with a major emphasis in speech pathology and reading disability. Mary Ann’s intense interest in central auditory processing issues began ten years ago and continues today. She has provided remediation services in public and private schools, hospitals, and rehabilitation centers. She has also supervised student clinicians at a university clinic, and she maintains a private practice in addition to working in the public schools in Buford, Georgia.

In her spare time, Mary Ann enjoys running and biking to prepare for Atlanta’s annual 6K Peachtree Road Race, run each July 4th. She also drives her husband crazy by constantly revising recipes he loves, in a never-ending effort to create something even better!

The Central Auditory Processing Kit is Mary Ann’s first publication with LinguiSystems.

Dedication

To my daughter, Miriam — Life has never been so good.

To my parents, my uncle, and my husband — Thank you for always expecting the best from me.
