
About the Authors

Orna Ariel Lenchner, Ph.D., a diagnostician and clinical teacher at the Stern Center for Language and Learning when this project was developed, is currently a consultant for the Consortium on Reading Excellence in Emeryville, California.

Blanche Podhajski, Ph.D., is the founder and president of the Stern Center for Language and Learning in Williston, Vermont, and an associate clinical professor of neurology in the University of Vermont College of Medicine. Dr. Podhajski received her doctorate in communication disorders, specializing in learning disabilities, from Northwestern University.

Acknowledgments

We wish to thank the following people:

The many Vermont educators who have shared their creative talents in Stern Center workshops

Special Educator JoAn Canning, who first suggested teaching classroom teachers how to build phonological awareness in their students

The Flynn School in Burlington, Vermont, which served as a pilot for this program and especially teacher Carol Stillinger

Williston Central School in Williston, Vermont, which served as the filming site for this project, and teacher Nancy Rondeau, who helped coordinate filming

Bill Kinzie, the videographer; Casey Chapple, the typesetter of the initial project; and Edgar Stewart, the graphic artist

All of the Stern Center students, from whom we learn so much.

Dedication

The Sounds Abound Program is dedicated to our students and to all youngsters who wrestle with the challenges of language learning.
